

SAMUEL CROSSMAN—HEIRS OF.

MAY 4, 1860.—Laid upon the table, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. DELANO, from the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, made the following REPORT.

The Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of William Crossman and others, children of Samuel Crossman, deceased, report:

That inasmuch as it appears that Samuel Crossman, the father of the present claimants, in virtue of whose services as a soldier they make their present claim, died on the 31st day of October, 1831, without ever having himself made an application for a pension; and as it further appears that Lydia Crossman, the widow of Samuel Crossman, died on the 17th of August, 1855, without having made any application for an annuity in virtue of her husband's services, they consider the case as one of a large class showing no special equity in the applicants, and which, under the general rule adopted by the committee, calls for an adverse report. They therefore ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the case.

SAMUEL GROSSMAN—HEIRS OF.

May 4, 1859.—Laid upon the table, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. DILLON, from the Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, made the following

REPORT.

The Committee on Revolutionary Pensions, to whom was referred the petition of William Grossman and others, children of Samuel Grossman, deceased, report:

That inasmuch as it appears that Samuel Grossman, the father of the present claimants, in virtue of whose services as a soldier they make their present claim, died on the 31st day of October, 1831, without ever having himself made an application for a pension; and as it further appears that Lydia Grossman, the widow of Samuel Grossman, died on the 17th of August, 1855, without having made any application for an annuity in virtue of her husband's services; they consider the case as one of a large class showing no special equity in the application, and which, under the general rule adopted by the committee, calls for an adverse report. They therefore ask to be discharged from the further consideration of the case.
